All of the above

What is their attitude to the passage of years and approach to mortality?

Hobbies and how they doing. No serious spiritual or academic stuff.

About their careers and what they have learned in life.

Yes please

you seem to have covered most of it

All of the above.

How did they choose their careers. How did CMC education help in the career. What advice would you give to the younger generation of doctors

How and what they are doing

Where they are now and what they are doing.

CMC impact

What they are doing now.

More of above

What ONE thing would you add, change or improve on the website?

14 responses

Anything to make it dynamic, so that others, apart from classmates will access it. Make it current, by inviting others to give their views on important matters; ex. invite someone like to discuss about the world /climate/health care/ AI/women etc

Tell interesting stuff about themselves or life in general, Interview only volunteers, no chasing people.

anything

more participation

Gentle reminders to visit the website Inform others about it to get more hits

It's good already

Easy access to the updates and opportunity to comment as in a bulletin board.

Print everything and put it like a news letter

What would you like our Batch of 65 website to become for us—and for the generations that follow us?

14 responses

Yes. Also, a place where medical professional and others can read about ethics of medical profession, what individuals can do to make the world a better place.

Not worried about this, let us enjoy it and thank Surrinder for starting and pursuing it.

Yes, a great website for posterity.

A legacy of Bo65 for anyone visiting the site reflect our values and our gratitude for what we have received and give back

Help Gen Z understand how we lived and survived

An archive of the journey each pone of us took after graduation at CMC

A lasting legacy

Time capsule is for our progenies. Which is also good. But we need current information.

News of 65ers for us. I don't the younger generation would be interested.

Great idea

Yes

Thank you all for your time. The questionnaire will remain accessible for another month. So please complete it if you have not done already.
